ELECTRONICS Australia, April, 1976 1

This is our exciting new Playmaster Twin Twenty Five stereo amplifier. It's easy to build, all on one large PC board, has an attractive appearance, and puts out 25 watts per channel. The first article commences on page 36.

Designed especially for novices, this solid state transverter will effectively convert a 27MHz "walkie talkie" transceiver into a 10 watt output transceiver on the 3.5MHz Novice band. Details on page 42.

Free catalog!
This month's issue offers something extra. In addition to our usual range of projects and feature articles, you will find a comprehensive 84-page catalog/data manual, published by arrangement with Dick Smith Electronics Pty Ltd. It's free, offered with their compliments and ours!

On the cover
Our two principal projects are featured on this month's front cover. The main theme shows our new easy-to-build, low-cost electronic organ which can be built to suit both your requirements and your budget. The story on page 54 provides all the information necessary to complete the unit in its simplest form. Inset shows the new Playmaster Twin Twenty Five stereo amplifier, featured on page 36.
